

I know that you will know some of the Marines in this picture (oops, who is the lone woman in the picture--why it's Jack Krause's daughter who was made an honorary Marine)

These were the women in attendance

And now all together

Tom and Peggie Buckingham

Betsy and Jerry James

Ann and Jack Krause with daughter Colleen

Church with supporting rods to keep it from tumbling down

Front of "The Market" which went on forever and ever; cannot tell you how many shops and eateries this market contains but it is the biggest one in Charleston

Look who just came out from shopping in "The Market" — Judy Chidester

I think that Tommy should remove his last name as it is very easily misread

During our visit to Parris Island, a Women Marines platoon was marching by

One of the parks with civil war canons on display

The horse and buggy was a great way to see the sites of Charleston and all those who took the time to take a buggy ride had a great time

There were rows of rainbow color houses

One of many cobblestone roads throughout Charleston
